Building and Sharing

Preschool provides great opportunities to practice building things and sharing with others. These two things are directly related! In many cases, in order to build something unique, kids discover that if they share resources and ideas they can come up with something really cool.

Sharing is a trained skill. There is a lot of talk in preschool about sharing and being a good friend by giving to others first whether it is a toy or the juice container at snack time. These basic introductions to sharing are not only life skills, but spiritual ones too.

We are called to be at work building the body of Christ. This is a collaborative task! We each have different talents which we can use together for this work. We are called to share the news to Jesus with everyone. The Holy Spirit uses all of us with our unique gifts to build something really cool. Jesus' love and forgiveness is for sharing with everyone. Be bold as you build others up by sharing this life-giving message!
